History

Since our founding in 1948, Seltzer Caplan McMahon Vitek has served as dedicated advocates for our clients and the San Diego community. Our founders initially focused on real property matters and quickly became known as the premier real estate and land-use attorneys in San Diego. Over the years, as the legal needs of the firm's clients expanded, we also expanded by adding attorneys and practice areas ranging from family law to litigation, estate planning, tax, intellectual property, cross-border and business law. Today, one-third of our team has been with Seltzer Caplan McMahon Vitek for 20 years or more. Our firm was built on the foundation of community service, a legacy that continues today at Seltzer Caplan McMahon Vitek. Our attorneys actively participate in many civic, charitable and legal organizations. A proud supporter of San Diego arts, it was fitting when our firm moved to the San Diego Symphony Towers building in 1991, and we continue today to maintain our offices in this iconic location.
